

Center for Virtual Instruction

Our Center provides current, relevant, researched information and best practices for education and training professionals in all aspects of virtual instruction.

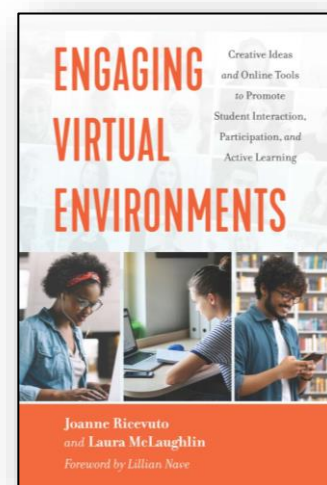

We focus on both research and instruction with emphasis on actionable tools and techniques for online teaching and pedagogy within a developing network of virtual instruction professionals.

Together, and virtually, we organize and deliver instruction and coaching sessions, support curriculum development, hold workshops with businesses and higher education professionals.

Virtual instructional environments, done well, can:

- Save money
- Allow flexibility for job and family responsibilities
- Remove barriers to educational & professional success

Check out our new book!
Available
on Stylus & Amazon.

Professor of Education, Neumann University

Dr. McLaughlin has co-authored two books and numerous articles on technology, creativity, and collaboration for educators and community leaders.

Assistant Vice President of Instructional Success, Harcum College

Dr. Ricevuto leads faculty programming including workshop and in-service event design and facilitation of a multitude of professional workshops for faculty.